

HARVARD CLUB OF BOSTON

BULLETIN

SEPTEMBER 2019

Members of all ages enjoyed a beautiful night at our annual summer roof deck party at the Downtown Clubhouse.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Dear Members,

September marks the Autumnal Equinox, a time when we transition from summer into fall. Daylight will continue to diminish until December's winter solstice, when our days will begin to grow longer until the cycle starts anew with June's summer solstice. This seasonal renewal is no more evident than in the student surge we see in Boston and Cambridge each year.

Part of any community's greatness lies in its ability to adapt to change whether it be manifest in the four seasons, the local influx of first-year students, or embracing transformational ideas. Since our original Trinity Financial development proposal announcement in mid-July, the Board and I have engaged with over 200 members, all inquisitive and interested in healthy information gathering. We have learned that the vast majority of these members are not change averse; but they do want to learn the facts i.e. how the proposed development will affect them, the HCB community, our neighbors, and the long-term fiscal health of the Club.

To that end, Steve Cummings, Trinity and I have held several member meetings to date, and we will continue them after Labor Day. Contained herein is the latest "Roundtable for the Future" meeting schedule (page 4). We strongly encourage our members to attend these meetings, or contact me directly with your questions/concerns on the project.

As you navigate the member-meeting dates, please be aware of our extraordinary post-Labor Day programming lineup. While the Club has featured startup companies in the past, this month for the first time we will showcase a startup venture out of Harvard's Department of Philosophy, ThinkerAnalytix. On Wednesday 25 September, ThinkerAnalytix leaders in concert with Harvard Professors Ned Hall and Sean Kelley will lead a discussion on The Promise of Argument Mapping. In a moderated panel format, they will explore argument mapping's potential for enriching philosophical, scientific, political and civic engagement.

And in the interest of promoting open, honest, and civil engagement, we want to hear from our members! I encourage you to contact me at president@harvardclub.com with your suggestions, concerns or general remarks.

Donec iterum, Veritas.

Matt Hegarty '82
President, Harvard Club of Boston

GENERAL MANAGER'S LETTER

Dear Members:

We recently completed the development of our FY2020 operational and capital budgets. Capital expenditures for the Club this year will include:

- o Five additional overnight guest room renovations
- o A new steam boiler and heat exchanger
- o Masonry repointing
- o Partial roof replacement
- o New kitchen equipment

Preparations are underway for an active fall and holiday season. Now is a perfect time to consider the Club as your host for a family or company event. I am pleased to report that member use of our Club continues to increase year over year. A special thanks to our dedicated staff for all they do. This past year was extremely active and I am very proud of the teamwork from all of our employees.

As referenced in Mr. Hegarty's letter, we hope you can join us to learn more about, and get any questions you may have answered, at the Roundtable for the Future Series we are hosting in September and October. It's important to us that our membership is fully informed about the developments for the Back Bay Clubhouse project.

This is an exciting time for the Club as we institute our strategic plan and work diligently on a Clubhouse master plan. I appreciate your loyalty to the Club and hope to see you soon!

Please feel free to contact me directly at 617-450-8400 or scummings@harvardclub.com if I can be of service to you.

Sincerely,

Steven P. Cummings, CCM, CCE

THE PROMISE OF ARGUMENT MAPPING

HARVARD PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT FACULTY AND THINKERANALYTIX LEADERS

Wednesday, September 25, 2019

6:30 pm Reception

7:00 pm Panel Discussion followed by Q&A

8:15 pm Reception Continues

Back Bay Clubhouse

Argument mapping is a visual method of displaying how reasons work to support a claim. A map exposes the fundamental structure of the argument so that everyone can see how all the reasons fit together. Join us to learn how argument mapping can develop critical thinking and reasoning skills, and what the practical benefits in terms of success in school and the workplace are.

Professors Ned Hall and Sean Kelly of Harvard's Philosophy Department, and their pioneering colleagues at ThinkerAnalytix, will discuss the development and promise of argument mapping. The stated values of ThinkerAnalytix reveal the intentions and aspirations of argument mapping, so students can:

- Think courageously to challenge beliefs and institutions.
- Experience the process of changing their minds.
- Listen rigorously and work to understand those they disagree with.

- Experience analysis and debate as exciting and constructive.

Professor Hall states, "the fact that we recognize a common framework means that your view is becoming intelligible to me."

We will also explore argument mapping's potential for enriching philosophical, scientific, political and civic engagement. To see an interactive argument mapping experience, click here.

Professor Hall is the Norman E. Vuilleumier Professor of Philosophy and Chair of the Department; and Sean Kelly is the Teresa G. and Ferdinand F. Martignetti Professor of Philosophy and Past Chair. Both serve on ThinkerAnalytix's advisory board.

COCKTAILS & PUBLIC POLICY: ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE

Wednesday, October 2, 2019

6:30 pm Registration & Mingling

7:00 pm Discussion followed by Q&A

Back Bay Clubhouse

Artificial Intelligence is advancing, reflecting a growing tendency to delegate decision-making to algorithms. Big data, namely the availability of enormous volumes of data on all kinds of human activity, further enhances the effectiveness of algorithms. New technology can assist, but also threaten, the goals surrounding human rights. In the short-term, these dangers include perpetuating bias in algorithmic reasoning. In the longer term, concerns surround the ownership of data, the increasing power of technology companies, and changes in the nature of work. This C&PP explores the ways in which artificial intelligence will affect human life, and its emerging ethics and human rights-related questions.

Price per person: $15 (plus *Club charge & tax) includes reception fare and lecture. A cash bar will be available.

CHEF'S CORNER

Dear Members,

In addition to regularly adding new dishes to the Club's menus, we continue to expand the list of local vendors and farms from which we source our ingredients.

Fresh ingredients are key to any great meal, but working with industry leaders who put the same care into their offerings as we do is equally as important. Here are just a few of those vendors:

Great Hill Blue Cheeses in Marion, MA
Maplebrook Farms in Bennington, VT
Vermont Creamery in Websterville, VT
Oakhurst Dairy Farm in Portland, ME
Farming Turtles in Exeter, RI

Wards Berry Farm in Sharon, MA
Jasper Hill Farms in Greensboro, VT
Foley Fish Company in Boston, MA
Blue Hill Bay in Hancock, ME

I'm excited to announce that on Saturday mornings for the months of September and October, we've added a new omelet station to our continental breakfast for $14 per person (plus *Club & tax). Our chef will prepare an omelette with your choice of fillings, or eggs any style, made to order.

We look forward to seeing you at the Club.

Her work spans astrophysics, science education, data science, data visualization, climate change, education and the history of prediction. In her talk, From Calypso to Calypso, she will share her career path and what drove her passion for knowledge in these fields.

Named Scientist of the Year by The Harvard Foundation, Professor Goodman has been working closely with colleagues to expand the use of the WorldWide Telescope program in research and in education, and organizes the "Seamless Astronomy" collaboration, based at the Center for Astrophysics. She leads the effort creating the high-dimensional linked-view exploratory data visualization software known as "glue," as well as the HarvardX course called "PredictionX," which traces the history of prediction from ancient times to modern simulations. She has chaired the Astronomy Section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Academy's Board on Research Data and Information, and now serves on the Astroinformatics and Astrostatistics Working Groups of the American Astronomical Society and the International Astronomical Union.

Professor Goodman pursues research at the Harvard and Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics and serves as Co-Director of Science at the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study.

PUBLIC POLICY BOOK DISCUSSION GROUP

Friday, October 11, 2019
8:00 am—9:00 am
Downtown Clubhouse

The Fifth Risk by Michael Lewis, is our October selection.

What are the consequences if the people given control over our government have no idea how it works? “The election happened,” remembers Elizabeth Sherwood-Randall, then deputy secretary of the Department of Energy. “And then there was radio silence.” Trump appointees were few and far between; those that did show up were shockingly uninformed about the functions of their new workplace. Some even threw away the briefing books that had been prepared for them. Michael Lewis gives us a look at a government under attack by its own leaders.

Optional à la carte breakfast service will be available in The Crimson starting at 7:00 am. Members and guests are welcome.*

Participation fee for non-members (must be registered as a guest by a member): $5, includes discussion and coffee. Registration for members is required for this complimentary event.
